(c) Steps taken to prevent accidents at unmanned level crossing include, provision of pre-warning arrangements for road users, launching of periodic safety drives to check the alertness of train drivers and their mandatory whistling, periodic publicity drives for educating road users through various means and involving the media, the village panchayats and other local bodies. Joint ambush checks with civil authorities are conducted to nab errant vehicle drivers under the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 and the Railways Act, 1989. Whistle Boards along the tracks for trains, and speed breakers and rumble strips for road users are also provided. Depending upon the volume and nature of rail and road traffic at level crossing and visibility conditions, unmanned level crossing are manned in a phased manner, vulnerable level crossings being given priority. System of digital axle detection based Train Actuated Warning Device has also been introduced for trials at some level crossing gates to warn road users about an approaching train.
